TWO CHARGED WITH THEFTS

YOUNG FARMERS ARE ACCUSED OF TAKING CHICKENS.

SOLD TO DEALER HERE

Dale Robinson Is Under Arrest And Another Is Sought—Owner Identifies Fowls.

Declaring that there has been developing in the county a serious wave of chicken stealing and other petty crime, Prosecuting Attorney George Pat Wright today filed a charge of "stealing chickens in the night time" against Dale Robinson, a young farmer employed on the Vern Manley farm, six miles southwest of Maryville.

Robinson was arrested yesterday afternoon following a search of his home by a party from the sheriff's office. Another arrest may be made soon.

It is charged that on last Monday night, while a community meeting was in progress in the Myrtle Tree neighborhood, about two dozen chickens were stolen from the flock of Clarence Dowden. On the same night, some wrenches and other tools were taken from the farm of Jesse Dowden, near that of Clarence Dowden.

Search warrants were issued yesterday afternoon and the homes of the two suspects were searched. None of the stolen chickens were found at the Dale Robinson place, but it is alleged that the missing tools were there.

Eight of the stolen chickens were sold at the produce house of Jack Parry on the next day. This discovery was made by Mr. Dowden, who began an investigation immediately after discovering the loss of his chickens. He stated that he could identify the fowls by peculiar marks. The dealer is said to have named the two defendants as the ones who made the sale.

The chickens were taken to the Dowden place and released, and they returned to their usual roosting place.

Chicken stealing, according to the county attorney, is one of the most prevalent types of thievery at present and yet the hardest to check. He urged that all poultry dealers keep a record of their purchases, and that those from whom birds are stolen report them at once.

"The produce dealers can help us break up this chicken stealing if they want to," the prosecutor declared. "They should make a record of every purchase of chickens—from whom they were bought and when. When chickens are stolen, they've got to be sold or kept some place, and if they are not sold and sent to market we can find them.

"The owners of stolen chickens can help, too," he added. "Thefts ought to be reported immediately and not a week or a month afterward. Every now and then someone comes into the office and says, 'Some of my chickens were stolen last week; I don't see why you don't do something to stop it.' And by that time, the chickens are in Kansas City or Chicago."

It is because of the difficulty in bringing chicken thieves to justice, the prosecuting attorney pointed out, that the Legislature has made the penalty especially severe. Whereas a charge of grand larceny usually is determined by the value of the property stolen, the taking of even one chicken at night is made a felony, with a maximum penalty of five years in the penitentiary.

EXPLOSION IN BOILER TODAY

GOES THROUGH TWO FLOORS AND ROOF OF HOUSE.

AT JENSEN PROPERTY

Four Men Narrowly Escape Injury This Morning. $800 Loss Covered By Insurance.

An explosion, which came near to resulting in fatalities, occurred about 8:30 o'clock this morning at the new house, which is being built by Charles Jensen just off Main Street on Ninth. No one was injured, however.

A hot water boiler blew up, went through two oak floors and the roof and fell 300 feet distant in the street.

A fire was started in the furnace of the new house this morning. The water boiler was presumably frozen. At any rate, it exploded, the bottom was blown off, and the rest went the aforementioned route.

Mr. Jensen, who was standing by the furnace, was knocked down, and Cleve Cornett, a workman, was narrowly missed by the boiler, which passed within a foot of where he was working on the second floor.

Albert Shelton, another workman, had just finished nailing a piece of boarding at the place where the boiler broke through the floor, and was walking across the room when the explosion occurred.

Robert Harding was sweeping one corner of the basement and a piece of sheet metal passed immediately over his head and through a window not more than a foot from him.

All of the windows in the basement and one on the first floor were broken by the explosion. The boiler went through pieces of oak three inches thick and ten inches wide. The noise of the explosion was heard in the business district and as far off as the State Teachers College.

The loss, estimated at $800, is covered by insurance.

Other speakers will appear on the program at the banquet. There will also be music and stunts.

NEW TOBOGGAN IS PERFECTED

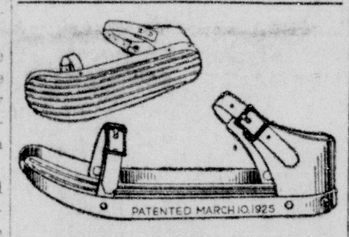
F. L. CURFMAN INVENTION IS NOW ON DISPLAY.

IS COASTING APPLIANCE

Is Similar To Shoe And Straps To Foot Like Skates—First Order Has Been Received.

A Maryville man has invented something which he hopes will be added to the sled and ice skate as a winter coasting appliance. It is the Foot Toboggan, invented by F. L. Curfman, and on display now at the Phares Hardware store, Howard Wray's, and D. E. Hotchkin's.

The affair is a sort of a metal shoe which straps to the foot in much the same manner as a skate. It is corrugated on the bottom and the toe part tilts in the same manner as a sled. The invention is now made in three sizes. In the future Mr. Curfman hopes to manufacture additional sizes, which make it possible to put the toboggan on over rubbers or overshoes.



Foot Toboggan Invented by F. L CURFMAN.

Patented in March, the foot sled has already enjoyed an acceptance as far east as New York. Mr. Curfman started a campaign of national advertising last week, and this morning he received his first order from it, from Roundup, Mont.

In the next issues of Popular Mechanics, Popular Science, and Science and Invention, the invention will be reviewed.

The corrugated, heavy-polished steel base makes it possible for the wearer to have control of his feet while on ice. One can coast on a hill navigate by strokes like roller skates, or take a run for a flying start on a slick place.

Mr. Curfman, who is well known as an inventor and perfector of appliances, has been working on the Foot Toboggan for five years. He first conceived the idea of his invention when raising his two boys, he said.

The Toboggan is constructed of 1-8-inch steel and has a flange around the edges which holds it in place on the shoe.

It is the hope of the maker to introduce his patent into South America next summer. It is already being sold in Canada.

SCHOOL CASE NOT DECIDED

ARGUMENTS WILL BE MADE WEEK FROM SATURDAY

LIQUOR CHARGE FILED

Robert Moody Pleads Not Guilty in Case Resulting From Recent Downtown Raid.

Introduction of testimony in the Conception Junction school injunction suit was completed in Circuit Court yesterday, but the case will not be argued until a week from tomorrow.

Attorneys A. F. Harvey and Cook and Cummins will present arguments for making permanent and temporary injunction now restraining collection of taxes in the school district. Wright and Ford will defend the school board against the action, which is brought by Gabe Purcell and others.

Robert Moody, whose room over the McMurry garage was raided two weeks ago, pleaded not guilty this morning to possession of intoxicating liquor. The filing of the charge was withheld pending analysis of the seized liquor which, according to the officers, was found to be intoxicating. Moody was released on $700 bond, and his trial was set for next Friday.

In the B. F. Goodrich Rubber Co's., suit on account against From Brothers, the plaintiff dismissed as to defendant Hans From and one-half the costs were taxed to the plaintiff. By agreement a judgment for the plaintiff and against Chris From then was rendered in the sum of $205.50, and by further agreement a stay of execution was granted for thirty days.

Mrs. Bess C. Thorp, ex-officio collector of Nodaway County, dismissed her suit for back tax against Willis A. Sawyers and others. The taxes have been paid. Judgment by default was rendered in the back tax suits against Harry Harrison and others, Luther Williams and others and Charles P. Anderson and others.

The attachment suit of J. H. Goodwin against C. O. Carter and Ward Carver was dismissed by the plaintiff.

In the attachment suit of the Northwestern Bank of Burlington Junction against F. J. Liggett, the defendant withdrew his plea in abatement and the attachment was sustained, after which the case was submitted to the court on its merits, a jury was waived, the evidence heard and a judgment rendered for the plaintiff for $2,413.56 at 8 per cent with attorney fees of $216.

A decree for the plaintiff was returned in the suit of J. Ed Costello against Dennis Dawson and others to perfect title.

Contributions may be left with any member of the Welfare Board. They are W. A. Miller, C. D. Allen, C. C. Leeson, Joe Cornell, Nick Sturm, J. B. Cummins, Hal T. Hooker, Mayor, W. O. Garrett and D. A. Caldwell.

Fire Damages Burns Home Near Barnard

Clothing Of Three Members Is Destroyed By Flames Having Origin In Closet.

Most of the clothing of the three members of the family of Lee Burns, five miles southwest of Barnard, was destroyed and some damage was done to the house by fire which was discovered in a clothes closet about 6:30 o'clock last night.

The cause of the fire has not been determined. The clothing was kept in the closet and it was ablaze when the fire was noticed. The flames ate their way through the stairway and into the second floor before they were extinguished by water carried by the members of the family and by volunteers, who arrived in a few minutes. There was some damage from water.

Mr. Burns was scorched about the face and hands in his efforts to get the fire under control. His injuries, however, are not serious.

George Herbert Wamsley, 69 years old, a resident of Nodaway County for more than forty years, died at 10:30 o'clock last night at the family home, 210 S. Walnut street. Mr. Wamsley had been ill for several months of heart disease and complications. Although he was bedfast for the last five weeks, his death was sudden.

Mr. Wamsley was born in Ogle County, Ill., May 5, 1856. He lived in his native state until about twenty-five years old, when he came to Nodaway County, locating on the Wamsley farm, south of Maryville. His home had been in Maryville for the last nine years. He was a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church and was active in church work at Arkoe before moving to Maryville.

Mr. Wamsley was married on November 29, 1888 to Alice M. Wendle, who survives. He also leaves two brothers, Harry and Willis Wamsley, living near Arkoe, and a sister, Mrs. Mary A. Dowie of Evanston, Ill. Another brother, John W. Wamsley, died suddenly five weeks ago at Greenfield, Ia.

Thermometer Is 2 Above; a Record for October Cold

If you remarked this morning as you gingerly put forth a reluctant toe from beneath the warm covers, that "It's the coldest morning we've had," then you can join J. R. Brink and P. Connor as official weather experts. It was 2 degrees above zero.

This morning's temperature not only was the lowest of the present season but it also set a new record for October.

The previous low mark since Mr. Brink started keeping records was set Wednesday when the mercury registered ten degrees above zero.

Ames, Ia., Oct. 30.—The Iowa State College's thermometer was trying to grab the honors for the lowest temperatures in the nation today. It was said to register seven below zero this morning.

GREEK WAR IS NOW AVERTED

IS FIRST ACHIEVEMENT OF PEACE FOR LEAGUE.

WILSON IS HONORED

Problem Of 20,000 New Macedonian Refugees Now Confronts The Body of Nations.

Paris, Oct. 30.—The memory of Woodrow Wilson was honored today as the League of Nations Council met to conclude the first real peace achievement of the League, the avoidance of war between Greece and Bulgaria.

Aristide Briand, French foreign minister and president of the Council, reviewed the Greek-Bulgarian situation and said that peace now reigned where a week ago, a new Bulgarian war threatened.

"I suggest that we dedicate this meeting to Woodrow Wilson, the inspirer of the League," said Briand.

The suggestion was adopted.

Sophia, Oct. 30.—The Greeks having completely evacuated Bulgarian territory, Bulgaria now faces a new problem of population which it looks to the League of Nations to settle.

Charges have been prepared to be laid before the League of Nations commission of inquiry alleging that the clashes on the Greek-Bulgarian frontier was entirely due to Greek action in driving Macedonian refugees over the border into Bulgaria. Bulgarian resistence to this new and unwanted influx of population led to the clashes, it is charged here.

The Greek invasion, it is claimed, has resulted in 20,000 new Macedonian refugees in Bulgaria, adding to the problem of caring for these people.

The Bulgarians charge that the Greek occupation was merely a covered move for the herding of Macedonian refugees across the border.

The Greek evacuation was without incident.

Start Drafting of New Tax Measure

Public's Participation in Recommendations to End Today—Treasury Officials to Make Suggestions.

Washington, Oct. 30.—The public's participation in the work of framing the new tax bill was brought to a close today.

Tomorrow, treasury officials will again appear before the ways and means committee to endorse and oppose the varied suggestions advanced by special interests in two weeks of public hearings.

Thereafter, Republican members of the committee will retire to rewrite the bill. Treasury officials are not expected to make any new recommendations or abandon their position as to the total safe cut of 300 million dollars. Most of the short items are continuations of existing taxes.

There will be a fight by the Democrats to exempt from all taxation earned incomes up to and including $5,000.

COOLIDGE MAY BE SUMMONED

MITCHELL'S COUNSEL MAY ISSUE SUBPOENA.

DEFENSE LOSES AGAIN

Flying Colonel Is Formally Arraigned And Enters Plea of "Not Guilty" On All Eight Counts.

Washington, Oct. 30.—Representative Frank Reid, Republican of Illinois, announced this afternoon he would probably demand a subpoena be issued for President Coolidge as a witness in the Col. William Mitchell court martial.

As Mitchell's chief counsel, Reid declared that the President had been named by the war department as the flying colonel's accuser and prosecutor.

"The accused has the right to be faced by his accuser," said Reid. "If the prosecution does not produce him, we probably will subpoena the President."

Washington, Oct. 30.—All his technical defenses swept away, Col. William Mitchell, storm center of the nation's aircraft controversy, was formally arraigned today before his "jury of generals" and pleaded "not guilty" to charges of conduct prejudicial to military discipline by his vigorous verbal denunciations of American aviation policies.

Mitchell made his pleas of not guilty eight times. The pleas followed directly on the heels of another reversal for the defense, the court having denied a motion by Mitchell's counsel for a "bill of particulars," setting forth in detail the part of his public statements which were considered as violating the ninety-sixth article of war under which the court martial was ordered by President Coolidge.

The opinion was rendered by Col. Blanton Winship, law member of the court, and immediately confirmed by the jury of generals. It was the third reversal for the defense in the last two days and the last move to delay action in the trial of Mitchell.

Col. Sherman Moreland, judge-advocate, then read the sections of the army manual setting out the "gist" of the offenses charged against Mitchell.

Court then was adjourned until 10 o'clock Monday to give both the prosecution and defense time to interview government witnesses who have just arrived from Texas.

These are in twenty-two counties and include the construction of thirty small bridges. The amount involved in bids is close to $1,500,000.

Contracts to be awarded on today's bidding will be for completion in 1926. These contracts will bring the total let for this year up to $30,500,000. There probably will be another lot of bids received before the end of the present year.

THE ONLY DAILY PAPER IN NODAWAY COUNTY

At a meeting of governors of six middle western states at Sioux Falls, S. D., this week, notice was given that legislation giving "agriculture equality with industry and labor in the American protective system" must be enacted if the American protective tariff is to be retained.

The conference went on record as favoring immediate projection of the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence waterway, utilization of flood waters of the Missouri River for supplementing rainfall and developing hydro-electric power, legislation giving governors more power to curb excessive expenditures by state departments, and the sale of grain on a basis of its protein content. Another resolution held that agriculture must be accorded tariff protection along with other industries or fail. As one of the governors remarked: "Should this organization extend to the scope we have in mind, it undoubtedly would be the beginning of a fusing of southern and middle western sentiment by which the industrial East may be successfully combatted in its endeavor to control the nation." Governor Baker of Missouri attended the conference.

What is intoxicating liquor? When is a person intoxicated? Judge Earl Peters in the district court in Clarinda answers these questions as follows: "A person is in an intoxicated condition when he is so far under the influence of intoxicating liquor, that his passions are visibly excited, or his judgment impaired, or when the use of intoxicating liquor has affected his reason or his faculties, or has rendered him incoherent of speech, or has caused him to lose control in any manner or to any extent of the action or motion of his person or body."

A HEAVY DRAFT.

The recent death of Senator Ralston of Indiana has moved a democratic writer to recall the heavy drafts time has made upon the party leadership since the Baltimore convention when President Wilson was nominated in 1912.

Among those who have been called over the Great Divide are Governor Glynn and Charles Murphy of New York, President Wilson and Senator Hughes of New Jersey, Senator Martin of Virginia, Congressman Claude Kitchen of North Carolina, Senator Tillman of South Carolina, Senator Bankhead of Alabama, Senator Culberson of Texas, Senator Ollie James of Kentucky, Thomas R. Marshall and Senator Ralston of Indiana, John Hopkins, Roger Sullivan and Frank Peabody of Illinois, Champ Clark and Senator Stone of Missouri, Sam Amidon of Kansas, Gov. Alva Adams of Colorado and William J. Bryan of Nebraska.

There are perhaps a large number not mentioned but who have been pillars in the Democratic structure but these are sufficient to call attention to the great inroads of death on the strong men of the past. The same may be true of the Republican party. Many great leaders are known to have gone over. Party leadership must be continually strengthened by the recruiting and development of strong men if it is to weather the storms and win success. Great principles live on forever but party success must rely largely on the leadership and the manner in which principles are handled and presented to the public from time to time. It at least appears that there is now a call for many good men who are organizers and leaders.

ORATORY A NEGLECTED ART.

Oratory is not a lost, but a neglected art. Public speakers, after the manner of poets, are both born and made. No matter how naturally gifted one may be, his gifts can be perfected only by training and practice. And even a poor or indifferent speaker can be measurably improved in public speech by discipline and perseverance and learning to think on his feet.

Disraeli was howled down when he first attempted to address parliament. But as he took his seat, he warned his jeerers that they would some day listen to him with rapt attention. And they did. Bryan, as a youth, had all the fire, but none of the graces of the orator. While others were asking to be relieved from practice in public-speaking, he took extra assignments. In his first contest he won second place. In the second he came off winner of the prize.

It is regrettable that the oratorical contest does not hold the place in the esteem of college students that it formerly held. Quite apart from one's vocation, the ability to speak with ease and clarity before an audience is a valuable asset.

The age of oratory—real oratory—never passes. The charm of distinctive conversation and of noble eloquence is as enduring as Egyptian pyramids.

A married man can carry a cigar in his vest pocket for months without it being broken.

"October's bright blue weather" that we are wont to love and praise has not materialized this year. It may come in November.

If Mussolini aims at supreme power in Italy, as has been suggested, it doesn't look as though he will have far to go.

UNDER THE CAPITOL DOME
POLITICAL GOSSIP IN WASHINGTON

THIRD TERM TALK.

By Paul R. Mallon.

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, Oct. 30 (United Press).—Schooled politicians believe all the signs of the times in Washington point to President Coolidge being a candidate again in 1928.

In discussing the question with a group of senators closely affiliated with John W. Davis, the Democratic candidate in the last election, one of them presented his frank and obviously unbiased view of the situation something like this:

"The hold Mr. Coolidge now has on the country is indisputable. He is the unchallenged master both of his party and of the administration.

"At this time there is no rising figure in the ranks who might talke his place.

"Of course careers can be made and unmade before another Republican National convention rolls around in three years, but the present drift of the tide seems to me to be piling up additional reasons why the Republicans should again select Mr. Coolidge.

"I think he is one of the greatest if not the greatest politicians I ever saw."

The Democrats are starting to work for the congressional elections next year in Mr. Coolidge's home New England territory.

Rep. William M. Oldfield, chairman of the Democratic congressional campaign committee has set out on a tour of Maine, Connecticut, Massachusetts and Rhode Island to line up the forces and rally the leaders to action. He did not see fit to touch Vermont or New Hampshire which are concededly and irretrievably Republican.

As an example of the Republican atmosphere of Vermont a United Press correspondent on a trip to Plymouth, Vermont with Mr. Coolidge was sitting on the steps of Miss Cilly's store, post office, and town center and asked a resident with whom he was conversing about the politics of Mr. Coolidge's home precincts.

"Well," said the farmer, 'up until two years ago there used to be 14 votes cast here every year, 13 Republican and 1 Democrat.

"But the Democrat has moved away, so I guess there won't be much use voting around here any more."

The first question asked by any returning Democratic leader with whom newspapermen talk politics in Washington is: "Do you think Al Smith is going to be a candidate for the nomination again?"

They don't know how to interpret the recent visit of Smith to the Democratic picnic in Chicago and the fact that after-dinner hosts insist on introducing him as "the next President of the United States."

The second question of the new arrivals is: "What has become of William Gibbs McAdoo?"

Nobody attempts to answer either question.

The Kansas City Star contained 48 pages yesterday and the St. Louis Post-Dispatch 76 pages recently. The merchants of those cities are alive to the value of advertising.

G. O. P. Is Disappointed in Indiana Situation

Factional Troubles in Hoosier State Is Not Smoothed by Appointment of Arthur R. Robinson.

By Charles P. Stewart
NEA Service Writer.

Washington.—The administration is mad clear through—at Edward Jackson, Hoosier governor.

Administration men thought the death of Indiana's Democratic senator, Samuel M. Ralston, would strengthen them in the upper house. Now they're afraid Jackson's choice of Arthur R. Robinson to fill the vacancy until the 1926 election will weaken them instead. Doubtless Robinson will be an administration supporter while he lasts, but what will be his appointment's effect at the polls next year?

Confusing, to say the least, is the general verdict.

Reports have reached here of Republican factional trouble in Indiana. They caused anxiety concerning the 1926 chances of Senator Watson, a candidate then for re-election. With Ralston's death came an opportunity to improve the situation.

What was wanted—and looked for—from Jackson was an appointment calculated to bring the factions together, cinch Watson's prospects and land a Republican permanently in the other Indiana Senate seat. Instead he picked a man—so the administration hears—who suits neither faction, does nothing toward uniting them and perhaps creates a third.

The impression prevails here that he deliberately chose a weak sister, politically, with an eye to his own chances next year. He won't get much backing from Washington.

Boys Had Narrow Escape.

Two sons of Rolla Wood and wife, who live on the D. O. Kent farm north of town, had a narrow escape from death or serious injury Sunday afternoon. The lads, Cleo, aged about 14, and Junior, about 12, had gone to a pasture near Denver to get a horse. As they were returning and while on the creek bridge just west of that town, the blind horse the two boys were riding stepped into a hole which unbalanced it, and its weight and that of the boys were thrown against the railing. The banister gave way and the horse and lads went over together down several feet into the creek bank. The horse fell on the lads and alighted in such a way that men were compelled to use a block and tackle to get it up.

The lads were taken to a drug store in Denver and medical attention given and later taken to their home. One of the boys seems the worse hurt, but the injuries will not result seriously, it is believed.—Albany Ledger.

Chicago Now Divorce Capital of Country

"Windy City" Leaves Reno Behind—Easy Laws Apparently Gain Nation-Wide Attention.

Chicago, Oct. 30.—Chicago has passed Reno and is now the "divorce capital" of the United States, according to Judge Joseph David.

David is not a regular divorce court judge but was assigned to a few marital cases because the regular courts were overcrowded. He was surprised when one of his first cases was that of Edward B. Osler of New York, who is credit manager for the Firestone Tire and Rubber Company.

"This is appalling," David declared in refusing the divorce. "Does this man believe he can sit comfortably in his New York office, send evidence out here to Chicago and get a divorce?"

"Chicago's easy divorce laws apparently have gained nation-wide attention and this city has passed Reno as the divorce capital."

Grand Jury to Report on Big Booze Ring

Indictments to Be Returned Late Today or Tomorrow for Liquor Activities in Middle West.

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 30.—A report on the special federal grand jury investigation of a recent gigantic booze ring operating in St. Louis and Indianapolis will be submitted this afternoon or tomorrow morning, it was stated today by Albert Ward, United States district attorney. He refused to disclose whether or not the names of those who have been indicted will be made public when the report is returned by the jury.

A number of St. Louis persons have testified before the grand jury this week, it was learned today. Against whom the indictments will be returned was a mystery but reports indicated that the true bills probably would name all or some of the seventeen persons indicted recently in St. Louis in the Daniels distillery investigation and also additional persons.

What Jerry Says

The snow the snow the beautiful snow,
The little white flakes as they fly to and fro,
Silently, silently all through the night,
Covering earth with a blanket of white.

Now isn't that verse poetical though,
You'd think me in love with the beautiful snow;
But the fact stops all thought of poetical talk,
For I've got to get out and clean off the walk.

The children will scream with delight in their plays,
When sliding down hill on their red painted sleighs,
But it isn't delight that makes me hur-rah—
When I slip and sit down like a ton of baled straw.

Of course I get up as quick as I can,
And wonder, who saw the descent of man.
I rub the sore spot a couple of times—
And go in the house and write a few rhymes.

AUNT HET

Around Our Town

Took another walk today. Saw this:

A man with two icicles on the ends of his mustache; a dog with two hundred icicles.

Several women with eyelashes beaded with snow.

Four automobiles standing in a row, funeral-procession like. Funeral for the men who had to pay the frozen-radiator bill.

A place on the sidewalk where a 200-pounder had taken a tumble. No cracks in the walk.

A woman screeching to her departing worse-half that he'd better come back and get his ear muffs.

An old man shoveling snow without gloves. Hands almost purple.

Another old man, wrapped up in a shawl, squinting at a frost-covered thermometer over his spectacles.

An automobile narrowly miss three small boys on a flexible-flyer.

Miles and miles of sidewalks which hadn't been shoveled clean. Perhaps someone, too lazy to shovel may break a leg on his own front walk.

And dozens of persons complaining about the cold.

Hallowe'en gayety was just beginning last night in the store of the J. C. Penney Co.—a party being given for the sales force—when the city fire siren suddenly shrieked and in a few seconds the party was interrupted by several excited firemen.

It was found that a telephone girl, seeing a glow in the studio of Photographer, F. W. Crow, had reported a fire. The Penney force, however, have another explanation, and it is given in the following poem:

That Red Neck Tie.

Last night at seven o'clock to be exact,
The fire siren tooted its call to arms,
And every toot was a pat on the back,
Speeding the boys to save things from harm.

Our fire fighters quickly (as they always do),
Responded full of ginger and pep,
And rushed determindly, with a meager clue,
To the origin of the fire—by heck.

Up stairs they ran to Crows Studio,
But alas no blaze saw they;
Then turning quickly, they looked and lo,
A bright red glimmer reflected the way.

To the rear of the J. C. Penney store,
This reflection so disastrous indeed,
Bid haste to the boys as they entered the door;
And acted as a tonic upon their speed.

But mystery of all mysteries dethroned,
The brightness of the beacon drew near;
With a roar of laughter—some groaned,
The boys saw the blaze quite clear.

Conspicuously hanging around Miller's neck,
Was a tie so bright it would light a pipe.
Said one of the boys: "Yank that off, by heck."
F. C. did. They get the treats tonight.

P. S.
The J. C. Penney store force,
Gave a party at the store last night,
Using Halloween colors and of course,
That accounts for the "hello" girl's fright.

Too Much Efficiency

By E. J. (W. J. Watt and Co.) Rath

BEGIN HERE TODAY.

JOHN W. BROOKE, widowed hardware magnate, contracts with a firm of efficiency engineers to have his home managed for a period of two months which he expects to spend away from the city. He fails to tell Constance, Billy and Alice, his grown children, about the arrangement. They find out, however, when

H. HEDGE, assigned to the job, takes over the complete control of the household; occupies the elder Brooke's private quarters and turns the library into an office. His plans develop a snag when, after installing a time-clock, Mary, the cook, refuses to punch it. Hedge has just explained to her that he must "insist upon an observance of rules."

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

"Rules!" repeated Mary. "Rules an' r.gulations! 'Tis rule this an' rule that. 'Tis 'Walk this way, Mary; it saves shtips.' 'Tis 'Write this in a book, Mary; I must know the

"Mary says she'll punch the clock herself, sir, or it will not be punched at all."

price av coffee an' tay.' 'Tis 'Fill out the carrd, Mary; 'tis needfud fur me to keep thrack av yer conduct!' An' I'm writin' in books an' fillin' out cards whin 'tis me that should be cookin'. An' ye've got Elvira thot crazy with litherary wurrk that the dishes shtand without washin'. Thim things have I done for ye, Misther Hedge—thim things but no more! I'll walk in me own way as long as me ould legs carry me. An' Elvira, do ye be walkin' as the Lord indinded, dacint and contint. An' we'll punch no dommed clock."

"The clock will be punched," said Hedge. "Please remember."

An efficiency man, installed with full authority to reorganize human activities, always wins. That is one of the fundamental laws of efficiency. So it happened that H. Hedge won in the matter of the timeclock.

He was not, however, aware of his victory until eight o'clock. At that hour he was seated in the dining-room and the three Brookes were also at the table.

"You may serve, Horace," said Constance.

"Breakfast is not ready, Miss Brooke."

"Not ready?"

"Not cooked yet, Miss."

The voice of Horace was unemotional, but there was a meaning in the glance he bestowed upon Hedge.

The efficiency man, without a word, rose from his place and went downstairs to the kitchen. It was empty. He ascended the back stairs and entered the servants' living-room. Just inside the door he paused and listened to the sob-choked voice of Mary.

"Thry it agin, Elvira. 'Tis shame an' sorrer an' the work av the divil, but thry! 'Tis an' hour gone now an' no kittle on the shtove. Haven't ye the thrick av it yet? Don't be answerin' me, but thry. I've thried until me fingers are achin' an' there's no sinse in me head.

"Thry it agin, ye fool Are ye thot clumsy? Here; give over the key, an' I'll thry it mesilf. May the divil fly away with a clock like thot!"

But the devil did not fly away with it, despite the earnest prayer of Mary Monahan. Instead, he backed out of the room and made his way back to the dining-hall, where the three Brookes were in whispered consultation with Horace.

"Where is our breakfast?" demanded Billy, rising at the entrance of the efficiency man.

"Apparently it is on the knees of the gods," answered H. Hedge placidly.

"Are they eating it?"

Hedge ignored him and turned to the butler.

"Horace, do you understand anything about a timeclock?"

"I—er—I've seen them, sir."

"Don't say 'er'—it's meaningless."

"Very good, sir.'

"Can you punch a time-clock?"

"I think so, sir."

"There is one in the servant's hall. Go out and punch it, in behalf of Mary and Elvira—for this time only. Hereafter they will punch it themselves."

"Yes, sir."

The efficiency man took his seat at the table and smiled blandly at the three Brookes.

They did not smile at him.

"What's all this stuff about a time-clock?" demanded Billy.

"It concerns the servants."

"It concerns us, if we can't get anything to eat."

"Be patient."

"Patient! Say, Mr. Efficiency Engineer, I'm as patient as anybody—but I'm hungry. So is Connie. So is Alice. We want breakfast."

H. Hedge viewed Billy Brooke with a glance if ill-disguised pity.

"A little fortitude," he counseled, "is a requisite part of character. Cultivate it."

"Oh, fine! But a little breakfast has got fortitude beaten by 10 lengths. I want my grub."

"Imitate your sister; she is not complaining."

Constance turned a scornful glance at the efficiency man.

Her morning gown was particularly charming; the flush in her face even surpassed it.

H. Hedge carefully noted both.

"If I omitted to complain," she said coldly, "I do so now. This is abdominable!"

"And you?" inquired Hedge, turning to Alice.

"It's fierce!"

The author of the clock was in nowise dismayed at the discouraging attitude of the three Brookes.

"A slight temporary inconvenience," he said, "will result in a permanent benefit to us all. I am putting this house on a business basis. As soon as the servants are accustomed to the new system there will not only be an absolutely prompt service of meals, but all other functions will be performed with fidelity and accuracy."

The entrance of Horace diverted the attention of the efficiency man.

"Did you punch the clock for Mary?" he asked.

"No, sir."

"Why not?"

"Er—I beg your pardon, sir. Mary will not allow me to punch the clock, sir."

H. Hedge frowned.

"Had my orders, didn't you?"

"Yes, sir, but—"

Horace coughed and shuffled his feet.

"Well, sir, you see, Mary is—er—beg pardon, Mr. Hedge—but Mary—"

Horace paused again.

"I would like to ask, sir, if you are well acquainted with Mary?"

"I do not yet enjoy that honor."

"Then, sir, perhaps you will not understand. But Mary — well, Mary says she will punch the clock herself, sir, or it will not be punched at all."

"Send Mary Here!"

Horace disappeared quickly.

The three Brookes exchanged glances and became expectant.

When Mary entered the dining-room her round face was moist with perspiration and her arms were folded resolutely across her ample bosom.

"Is the clock punched yet?" asked the efficiency man.

"'Tis not."

"Do you know how?"

"I do not."

"I sent Horace to punch it for you, for this morning only. He says you refused to allow him to do so."

"I did."

"Why?"

Mary took a step forward and came to a second halt. Her cold, blue eyes met the glance of the efficiency man without a quiver.

"Me little man," she said, "'tis ye thot towld me I'd be punchin' the clock mesilf. An' ag'inst the hour I punch that clock, there'll be no breakfast. The rules an' rigulations are none of my makin'. 'Tis ye yersilf invinted thim. An' I'll have no Englishman butler tellin' me how I'll be puttin' a key in a time-clock. No, nor no Eyetalian furnace-man, ayther."

H. Hedge viewed her without emotion, but the three Brookes were displaying lively interest.

"I did not ask Giovanni to help you," remarked the efficiency man.

"An' 'tis mercy for him. I've done me own wurrk in this house for 18 years, Misther Hedge, an' no odds from annybody since I had the lumbago, three winters gone. 'Tis not me put the clock in the house. But if it has to be punched, I'll do me own punchin'. Mind ye thot. I'm an independent woman, sor. Divil a punch goes into thot clock for Mary but I do it mesilf."

"But I heard you trying to get Elvira to do it."

"Ay, the poor fool. 'Twas useless. I'll ask her no more. From now till the day av judgmint, Misther Hedge, I'm—I'm—be the saints, I'm scientific."

Mary placed her hands on her hips and awaited a reply.

"But we're hungry, Mary," said Alice plaintively.

"Ye poor darlin', av coorse y' are! But 'tis not me can do annything for ye. The days av me cookin' is over, deary; I'm a clock-puncher. An' whin I'm not punchin' clocks, I'm writin' in books. An' whin I'm not writin' in books, I'm shteppin' forward an' back, like a dancin'-master.

"'Tis science. We're undher rigulations now, deary. Do ye mind the eggs I cooked yistherday? They wint on the scales firrst. There's no more poachin' two eggs for Miss Alice. I'm poachin' four ounces. That's science, darrlin' dear.

"An' there's no more coffee made in the ould pot. No, indade! 'Tis dribled out of a new-fangled Rooshian machine, so many minutes to so many ounces, with Elvira holdin' the watch. An' thot's science. An' between whiles, whin we know how, we're to run an' punch the clock. Science!"

S. T. C. Societies Have Halloween Programs

Eurekans and Philomatheans Plan to Hold a Joint Meeting on Next Thursday.

Halloween programs seemed to be in order for literary society programs yesterday afternoon at the College.

The Eurekan society began its program with an explanation of the "Origin and Customs of Halloween" by Miss Ruth Ramsbottom, followed by a group of songs, "Little Orphan Annie" and "Big Brown Bear" by Miss Katherine Gray, after which a ghost story was told by Mrs. Harold O'Banion.

The Halloween talk in the Philomathean society was given by John Mountjoy and was followed by a violin solo. A "Witches' Society" was a Halloween feature by three members of the organization, Miss Grace Foster, David Max, and Clement Rickman. The three witches selected members of the society whom they thought would make good witches and gave reasons why they thought those chosen would be welcome to the "witches round table."

The two organizations plan to have a joint meeting next Thursday.

Oil Man to Talk at Meeting in Barnard

Jim O'Hara and the Rev. Yount to Speak at Theatre There Tonight.

(Barnard Bulletin)

Jim O'Hara, who scouted this community the first of last week with the idea in mind of looking over the field with regard to oil, is to be back with us Friday night.

A meeting has been called to be held Friday night when Mr. O'Hara and Rev. Yount, pastor of the M. E. church here, will talk at the Barnard theatre, each telling what they think of the community with regard to oil and suggesting plans whereby oil well drilling can be done here.

Oil men are busy searching the world for new fields to develop. Mr. O'Hara is a man of wide experience in scouting and drilling. If he can get a body of land leased around Barnard of sufficient acreage to justify it, he proposes to get the money to drill two o three wells from outside.

SAYS FRENCH AID NOT GIVEN

"EYEWITNESS" TELLS OF TROUBLE IN DAMASCUS.

CONSUL IS CUT OFF

Britisher Declares Americans and English are Taken to Hospital for Protection From Bombs.

London, Oct. 30.—The Christian quarters of Damascus was at the mercy of the Moslems in the recent troubles—without any French protection—according to a British "eyewitness," whose story was related in yesterday's Daily Mail.

According to him, the American consul at Damascus was cut off from telephonic communication with a group of British and American missionaries and other foreigners in the British hospital. Morever, the consul was quoted as saying he had had advance assurance from the military authorities that the Christian quarter would be safe.

But when the French bombardment came—by way of putting down the Druse uprising—the French themselves had taken to flight and the other foreigners were left "to the mercy of Druses, Moslems and robbers."

The consul further was quoted as saying there were no French soldiers nor Syrian police in the quarter for twenty-four hours.

"Realizing that is was unsafe for missionaries to remain unprotected from the fire of the French guns," said the "eyewitness," "I took eleven British and American missionaries to the British hospital where 5,000 Christians had availed themselves of protection. Tuesday morning I tried many times to telephone the British and American consuls but the wires were cut. Later I met the servant of the American consul, who had been cut off from the consulate for two days. We attempted to reach the British consulate but did not succeed as it was cut off and had been hit during the firing. Later I managed to telephone the American consul."

It was then he told of the French advance assurances.

The eyewitness added that the British Syrian mission was badly damaged by shellfire. Casualties were estimated at several thousand. Jamal Husheini, secretary of the Palestine and Arab Congress, painted the conditions in the city as serious, with the British consul ordering Britishers to leave. Winter is setting in and the condition of homeless inhabitants was said to be extremely pitiable. The French are charged with forcing back refugees who sought to depart.

Miss Zelma Campbell, who has been ill at St. Francis Hospital, was dismissed this afternoon. Miss Campbell is a College student.

PUTTING IT UP TO CHRISTIANS

Comment on the Uniform International Sunday School Lesson for November 1, 1925.
Read Ephesians 6.

Wm. Southern, Jr.

When the French delegation, here to discuss the debt situation, headed by the Minister of Finance, arrived in Washington, the members were invited to a dinner by President Coolidge. When they sat down at the table they found the usual array of eating tools and at each plate two thin glasses. The arrangement was the same as that to which they had been accustomed at home. Their surprise came when the waiters first filled the larger glass with Potomac river water and later the smaller glass with sparkling mineral water. There was no wine served at the President's table.

Minister Caillaux and his companions had heard that we had prohibition in this country but they probably never dreamed that the President of the United States would serve an official dinner without wine. They learned that the President was a law abiding citizen.

This was also significant for them when their mission is considered, that of arranging to pay a national debt. If these men will take the trouble to find out some of the effects of prohibition in this country they will also be pointed toward the way to pay what they owe. They will discover and I think that not even those opposed to prohibition will deny this, that the savings accounts in the United States have increased many times since prohibition, that men who work for wages now have homes and automobiles where before they lived in rented hovels, they will find that the women and children of the workers wear good clothes where they wore rags, that on the tables of the poor are wholesome foods, where before there was almost starvation and that the billions of dollars which before prohibition were spent over the bars in open saloons now go to the comfort and the happiness of good citizens of this nation.

This is the quarterly temperance lesson and the text is taken from the Ephesians, one of the letters of Paul which were, soon after his death, collected and still later made a part of our New Testament. It was written while Paul was a captive in Rome and was living in the constant presence of a jailor to whom he was tied by a small chain. The name is given the epistle because it was thought to have been written to the church Paul had established in Ephesus. This may have been correct, but the letter might have been written as a circular letter to all the Christian churches, might have been written as a circular letter to all Christians of all time. When it was placed in our Bible it was so used.

In this letter Paul tells Christians how to live and how to maintain themselves as Christians. He does not lay down a lot of thou shalt nots, because Paul knew how different were Christians lives under different circumstances. He did lay down a few principles of living.

In the text the Christian is told to put on the girdle of truth. This sounds like a reference to the new style of women's frocks, but the meaning is quite clear. Paul is simply telling us that God hates a liar. A Christian can not be a liar. There is no safety in a lie.

He advises the wearing of the breastplate of righteousness. Sounds preachy does it not, and I am not trying to preach to you. What it means very simply is that the right life is the only life to live. If young people could understand this how much of misery and shame and suffering they could avoid. The right life is the only happy life.

Put on the shield of faith. It is a crime to teach children to be afraid. To make a child afraid of the dark or to threaten it with "boogers" or bears, or even with whippings when Dad gets home is doing an injury to that child. The Christian ought never to be afraid of anything.

All through his writings Paul insists that the Christian should always be a good citizen, obey all the laws himself and further than that should use all his own might and power and influence to see that all laws are obeyed.

Apply these general principles to the citizen of today. They fit now just as they fit in the days of wicked Ephesus at the beginning of the church. Recently an organiation styled the Federal Council of Churches put out a survey of prohibition. It told a lot of facts and left untold a lot of facts, but one thing it did make plain. That the non-enforcement of the Eighteenth amendment to the constitution of the United States was because of recreant officials and of men and women who claim to be good citizens. The first class were men who break their oath of office, the second class, those who break the law.

GENERAL LESSON TITLE—THE FIGHT AGAINST STRONG DRINK

Scripture Lesson—Eph. 6:1-20. (Verses 10-20 printed.)

10. Finally, be strong in the Lord and in the strength of His might.
11. Put on the whole armor of God, that ye may be able to stand against the wiles of the devil.
12. For our wrestling is not against flesh and blood, but against the principalities, against the powers, against the world-rulers of this darkness, against the spiritual hosts of wickedness in the heavenly places.
13. Wherefore take up the whole armor of God, that ye may be able to withstand in the evil day, and having done all, to stand.
14. Stand therefore, having girded your loins with truth, and having put on the breastplate of righteousness,
15. And having shod your feet with the preparation of the gospel peace;
16. Withal taking up the shield of faith, wherewith ye shall be able to quench all the fiery darts of the evil one.
17. And take the helmet of salvation, and the sword of the Spirit, which is the word of God:
18. With all prayer and supplication praying at all seasons in the Spirit, and watching thereunto in all perserverance and supplication for all the saints,
19. And on my behalf, that utterance may be given unto me in opening my mouth to make known with boldness the mysteries of the gospel.
20. For which I am an ambassador in chains; that in it I may speak boldly, as I ought to speak.

Golden Text—Be strong in the Lord, and in the strength of his might.—Eph. 6:10.

When the great war was ended by the armistice in 1918 this nation resounded with rejoicing. Cannons boomed, sedate heads of families shouted and laughed and wept, the war was over. Yet the war was not over. It remained for us to readjust ourselves and establish those things for which the war was fought. We have not yet done so, but this great people who make up the United States of America has not despaired, has no thought of despairing of the attainment of the right results. We know we are going to win and nobody suggests repealing the war.

When national prohibition was declared there was also rejoicing. The fight of a century had been won, our troubles were over. The saloon was banished and the liquor forces routed. We rejoiced too soon. The fight was just begun and is still on. Let nobody think for a minute that the United States will ever repeal the prohibition law. The people are not fooled by propaganda. They know what it has done for their homes and for themselves. In this country the sentiment of the people rules in spite of corrupt officials and in spite of those who term themselves above the law and in spite of the thousands of men and women who violate the law and still call themselves good citizens.

Can a politician be a Christian? Watching our politics there are chuckles at the suggestion. A politician can be a Christian. This is not all of it, every Christian ought to be a politician. A good Christian should be the last person in this nation to refuse to vote. Is a Christian a good Christian who refuses to vote?

When we realize that 47 per cent of those entitled to vote in this country elect all the officials from president down, we will understand the peril, the imminent peril, to our form of government. If every Christian was a politician and voted at every election and voted intelligently and as a Christian, the problem of the enforcement of prohibition would be solved at a single election.

Think it over.

To Hold Corn and Poultry Show.

All indications are that December 3 and 4 will long be remembered in the agricultural history of Holt County, for on those two days will be held the first annual Holt County Corn and Poultry Show, at Mound City. It has been suggested that a very proper and fitting place to hold this show would be in the big hall over the new Farmers Exchange building.

This show is being held under the auspices of the Holt County Farm Bureau and the Mound City Commercial Club.—Mound City News-Jeffersonian.

Harrison County Farms Sell.

Two sales of Harrison County farms were made last week, one of them transferring a 350 acre tract between Martinsville and Washington Center. This farm was sold by Charles Wright to the Poe Brothers, residing northwest of Bethany, for $77.50 an acre. It was said to be a cash transaction.

Wright later purchased of T. O. Guymon, of Bethany, an 80-acre tract located a mile north of New Hampton. This also was a cash sale, the price being $6,900.

New Hotel for Bethany?

The possibility of outside capital being put into the erection of a modern hotel in Bethany is seen in an inquiry made recently by Carl Mitchell, who is connected with the new Travelers Hotel at Kirksville.

Hearing through traveling men that Mrs. B. K. Gilson, proprietor of the Central Hotel, was backing a plan to erect a new hotel here, Mr. Mitchell became interested and talked with Dr. R. H. Beets of Bethany when the latter was in Kirksville a short time ago.

The Kirksville man said he would like to invest some money in an enterprise of the kind and offered to come here to talk the matter over with local people. He was to have been here Monday night to meet with the Chamber of Commerce to discuss the proposition but failed to reach Bethany. It is believed he may not have attempted the trip because of the condition of the roads. He is expected to come at some other date soon.

Killed by Falling Tree.

Freeman Conger, whose home was a mile and a half southeast of Avenue City, went with George Wilson to the farm of Godfried Haueter Sunday morning to cut a bee tree. About 10 o'clock, when the work was almost complete, the tree fell unexpectedly and struck Mr. Conger, killing him instantly.—Savannah Reporter.

More Big Corn.

Walter E. Deason, who lives ten or twelve miles northeast of Albany, tells of some big corn he gathered from a field this fall. Six ears of Reid's Yellow Dent he gathered measured 80 inches and weighed ten pounds, after they had been husked three weeks. He has eight acres he says will make from 60 to 70 bushels an acre.—Albany Ledger.

Church of God Has Bindery.

The Church of God is at the present time putting in a new binding outfit. The equipment represents a neat outlay of money, but will mean a great improvement in their equipment.

"We've been hiring a company in Kansas City and St. Louis to do this work for us for the past three years, but we have decided to put in our own equipment," Elder A. N. Dugger said in commenting on the purchase.

The new equipment for Stanberry will mean several employees, as the new department will keep several busy.

The Church of God is at the present time getting out 3,000 copies of "Bible Home Instructor," edited by Elder A. N. Dugger. There are 500 pages to the book, and the officials hope to have their bindery ready to do all of the work on this book.—Stanberry Owl-Headlight.

Hunt Worth County Calves.

L. A. Saunders, county agent, and Attorneys D. B. Reeves and Dennis Wayman, all of Albany, were in Worth County Tuesday hunting four Worth County registered Hereford calves to enter in the Gentry County calf club of 1926—and they expect to win the show with the calves they buy. Just any calf won't do for they were shown some good ones—not good enough, however, in their opinion to make the grand champion. Worth County has establish a wonderful record for her cattle by winning grand championship in the Baby Beef Show for four successive years and it is but a matter of good judgment, with that record behind our stock, that others who want to make the grand championship, should come to Worth County for their stock.

And as further evidence in the case there was Jesse Engle & Sons' Hereford sale yesterday where the stuff sold between $250 and $1,350.—Worth County Tribune.

Gentry County Road Finished.

A hard-surfaced road through Gentry county is now a "concrete" fact—or rather a part of it is concrete, and the rest is gravel and tarvia.

Anyway, the last gap, just west of the Burlington railroad tracks, was completed last Tuesday afternoon, and after the finishing slice of the slab has seasoned for twenty-one days there will be a 365-day highway stretching from north of Bethany down through New Hampton to the Harrison county line, on through Gentry county, and down a ways into DeKalb.

The contract has been let for closing the gap between King City and Clarksdale. The Ocean-to-Ocean highway is a fine cement pavement between Clarksdale and St. Joseph; so early next summer you will be able to motor to St. Joseph any day in the month without having to bet against the weather or a drive home in the mud.—Albany Capitol.

YOU will be particularly interested in The Globe-Democrat of the date shown below.

On that day your county will be described in story and pictures—as a feature of the series of Missouri articles which we are publishing.

Local scenes, local people, local traditions—all pertaining to your county will be described. And the Gravure Section will carry brand-new pictures of places familiar to you.

This material has never been published before. A Globe-Democrat staff writer and staff photographer have been touring Missouri for first-hand information regarding each county.

You will want to save the article and pictures featuring your county... You will want them for your files.

In fact, you'll want to collect all the articles in the series for a scrapbook atlas of Missouri. It will be a valuable collection.

Closing Grain Review.

Chicago, Oct. 30.—Grains dropped fractionally in today's session on the Board of Trade.

Wheat went through another erratic session today. Price swings were numerous. A mid-day flurry on short covering elevated prices from inside of the grounds. Best prices failed to hold in final liquidating that followed European offers to cancel purchases made the last few days.

Corn dropped to within touching distance of the previous finish. Buyers were active on the small receipts and further withdrawals from already light stocks. Selling for profits set in on wheat's weak spots.

Oats held comparitively steady within a narrow range. The pit was neglected.

Provisions strengthened late on short covering.

GOOD HOPE.

Yesterday afternoon came our third snow flurry for the season, it came near being a first class blizzard for a short time, and today it hasn't thawed to amount to anything, only on the east and south of the buildings. This snap is hard on us farmer folks. So many have to gather corn for the hogs; corn not dry enough to crib yet, unless it is quite early. So much rain has made the corn so sappy, but this freeze will help out wonderfully in drying the corn.

We are glad to report Andy Morehouse getting along nicely, also Mrs. Edward Morehouse is improving quite rapidly, we hear. They will be glad to get home from the hospital; also will their folks and friends.

Ab Sowers is carrying his arm in a sling, the result of a fall while fixing the eave trough on his hen house and his son, Dale, is on the sick list, consequently he was on the hunt for some one to get him a load of corn this p. m.

Oscar Webb from Hopkins is helping Oliver Wilson, Earl Dowling, Charlie Taylor and John Morehouse re-build the flue to the Good Hope Church this week, it is about completed, the stoves will be put up tomorrow and the church cleaned all ready for Sunday School and Preaching next Sunday. Come out! Dr. E. B. Thompson will be here and preach.

The little new bungalow of Mrs. Anna Bebouts is nearing completion, this weather has hindered the work but they have it ready to be plastered, beginning this morning.

Miss Bertha Riley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Amos Riley from Parnell and Roy Wilson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Wilson, went to St. Joseph last Friday and were married. They are at Clint Gormans, where Roy is working. Congratulations to them.

John Morehouse has been dismissed from the petit jury in Maryville until Nov. 6, 9 a. m. His wife is glad of it for this weather is rather hard on farmeretts, who have so many chores.

The Rev. Doreas, our new preacher, urges all members of the Quarterly Conference to be at Clearmont, Saturday p. m., for the 1st conference since the Annual Conference. We are all hoping the weather man will be on the very best behavior until over Sunday anyway.

Last Thursday evening the Farmer's Union meeting was well attended, had a good program, lots of pumpkin pie, doughnuts and coffee; every one had a good time. Oliver Wilson, Earl Dowling, Marlin Harris and William D. Jones were appointed as delegates to the Quarterly Conference in Clearmont Saturday p. m.

Wood sawing season is here, Roy Ringold has been sawing for Wm. Boyd, Mr. Hanna and Mr. Wilders.

Charlie McKee, Bert Blackney, Dale Sowers, Ula Morehouse, Henry Morehouse, Irvin Lawler, Walter Rickman and Wayne Davison and Everett Ulmer have been shippers through the Farmer's Union within the last few days.

GUTHRIE ITEMS.

Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Black and daughter, Roberta, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Harold Tompson.

Monday as Will Sherlock was sawing wood, he saw a flock of ducks flying over. He dropped the stick he was sawing, took the gun and stepped lively for the creek. As he neared the creek he saw several large mallards swimming and diving. With five shots he brought down twelve. If anyone can beat that we would like to hear from them. Mr. Sherlock, not wishing to be selfish, invited the following to supper: Mr. and Mrs. Jim Bradshaw, Mr. and Mrs. Ormand Mitchell and children, Eldon, Elmer, Doris Ruth, Mary, Martha and Eugene, Mr. and Mrs. Will Kluth, Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Tanner, Mr. and Mrs. Dan Asher, Charley Neal, Emery Nicholson, Bert Mitchell, Luther Williams, John Davis, John and Frank Sherlock and the host and hostess.

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Bradshaw visited Sunday afternoon with Mrs and Mrs. Joe Cockayne.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Sherlock called Sunday evening on Mr. and Mrs. Jim Bradshaw.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Kluth, Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Tanner visited Sunday evening with Mr. Tanner's father near Arkoe.

Salesman Talks to Class at College

Speaker Advises Use Of Golden Rule —"Largest Asset Is Good Will Of Customer."

"The selling business today is not reaching across the counter and taking something away from the other fellow," stated Otto Knaul, district salesman of the Knaul, Cuthbert & Munn Jewelry Co., of Kansas City, in a speech before the class in salesmanship at the College yesterday.

The use of the golden rule by salesmen was advised by the speaker, also, "The largest asset in acquaintance and good will of your customer. He will soon come to class you as a friend," he added.

His advice to young salesmen was "to try to impress the customer that 'I am going to learn more' and that if he is a traveling salesman that 'this is not going to be my only trip' and that you are going to be his old reliable.

Another point brought out by the speaker was the service of the traveling salesman in helping his customer by advising what goods are selling well and what are not.

His impression was that the merchants of today are just about as smart as the fellow that comes to sell him goods.

C. W. Rogers, head of the commercial department of the college, is the instructor of the class and it is his plan to have salesmen give some practical talks on selling before the class from time to time.

LONE VALLEY.

Mr. and Mrs. George Sexson and son Harold, and Mr. and Mrs. Sid Ewing were dinner guests at Edd Van Pelts Sunday.

A GROUCH NOT WANTED.

There is nothing so harmful to success as being a grouch. Stomach, liver and intestinal troubles make one grouchy. Mayr's Wonderful Remedy will help overcome these and usually gives complete results.

Our advice to everyone troubled in this way, especially when accompanied with bloating in the stomach, is to try this remedy. It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. At all druggists.—Adv.

BEARCATS WIN A 3-TO-0 GAME

EADS KICKS FROM 12-YARD LINE IN CAPE GAME.

STILL ARE VICTORIOUS

Field Fast During Game With Flurry Of Snow As Only Marring Factor.

Playing on a fast field, in a flurry of snow, the State Teachers College Bearcats added another scalp to their belt when they triumphed over the Cape Girardeau Indians yesterday afternoon at the Cape by a 3-to-0 score.

It was a hard-fought battle which went scoreless until the last of the third quarter, when Eads, Maryville halfback, booted a perfect goal from placement on the 12-yard line.

And still the Maryville goal line has not been crossed by 1925 opponents.

In the last minute of play, with a desperate passing attack, the Indians advanced the ball to the Bearcat 11-yard line, only to be halted by the timer's gun.

Eads was the big ground gainer for the locals, while Masters and Search, Maryville backfield men, were hard to stop at the line. Ten times during the game the Maryville offense resulted in first down, while the Indians were able to negotiate distance but three times.

Although the game was a driving one, and was hard-fought all the way, there were no injuries. A communication from Coach H. Frank Lawrence last night indicated that his team was in first-class condition, and the score itself shows that the massacre planned by the Indians was a failure.

The weather was good for football. The field was in excellent condition and a light snow throughout the contest was the only marring factor.

The Bearcats started on the return trip last night. They are coming back by way of St. Louis, and will arrive in Maryville at 7:42 o'clock tonight.

Out of the five games played this season, the Bearcats have amassed a total of sixty-five points. The only points scored by opponents were three which came in the Kirksville game.

All Eyes on Bulldog-Warrensburg Battle

Outcome Will Probably Forecast The Bearcat-Mule Game To Be Next Week.

Local football interest is centered today in Kirksville where Coach McWilliams' Bulldogs are meeting the Warrensburg Mules. The outcome of this game will serve to indicate what may be expected when the State Teachers College Bearcats journey to Warrensburg next week for a game with the central-state Teachers.

The game at Kirksville today is a Homecoming affair. Annually these two teams have been meeting on Thanksgiving, but this year the game was moved up to a teachers-meeting event in order to give several thousand teachers, old grads, and students an opportunity to witness the traditional meeting of the two rivals.

Since 1905 the two teams have met twelve times. From six of these meetings Kirksville has emerged victorious One year there was a tie.

Joint Reception for Two New Ministers

Is Held in Armory in Burlington Junction Wednesday Evening—Large Crowd Attends.

(Burlington Junction Post).

A reception for the two new ministers in Burlington Junction was held at the armory building Wednesday evening. About 350 were in attendance and it was one of the most thoroughly enjoyed community events that has been held in Burlington Junction for a long time.

The honor guests were the Rev. and Mrs. J. Howard Thompson, and the Rev. and Mrs. Alva L. Ragsdale and three children. Rev. Thompson, pastor of the M. E. Church has been here for about three weeks, and Rev. Ragsdale just last Sunday began his work as pastor of the Christian Church. Members of both congregations feel that they have pastors of outstanding ability and it was very appropriate that a joint reception be given them, as the two men began their work so near the same time.

A very pleasing program had been arranged and was carried out. Prof. Claud Thompson acted as toastmaster. A ladies quartet sang, "How Do You Do?" with some verses especially written for the ministers, and it was a number greatly enjoyed. The address of welcome on behalf of the Methodist congregation was made by Miss Jennie White and Prof. Rutledge gave the address of welcome for the Christian church. Both ministers responded with splendid talks. The quartet sang, "Life's Dream." Rev. D. B. Warren made a short talk and little Iola Graves gave a much enjoyed reading.

Pumpkin pie, doughnuts and coffee were served.

PRAYING FOR FROZEN LAND

SOGGY FIELDS WILL HANDICAP FARMERS OF COUNTY.

WINTER WHEAT STOPS

Acreage Next Year Will Be Less Because of Snow, J. Ross Fleetwood Says.

Farmers of Nodaway County are praying for dry weather after the snow. They don't particularly care how cold it gets, just as long as the ground freezes so they can harvest their corn, was the opinion of J. Ross Fleetwood, county farm agent, today.

Mr. Fleetwood said that the snow will be beaten off the corn stalks within a short time and if the ground stays solid, the farmers will be able to get their corn into bins without much loss. If the ground gets soggy the same will be true of the corn and that would mean a heavy loss.

Windstorms in the county have already taken their t oll, and in some sections the corn is down. However, in other parts of the county it is well up. This snow has about put an end to the planting of winter wheat, Mr. Fleetwood continued. This will mean that the acreage next year will be less.

"This is no vital factor," Mr. Fleetwood said. "For wheat supply in this county is not so large that it cuts much of a figure in the world supply."

Last week farmers in this county were busy gathering their corn. This work was halted by the snow, and subsequent weather will determine whether it will be possible to get into the fields with teams and wagons.
